

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A heater head assembly is provided with potential advantages of low assembly and integration requirements. A significant portion of the heater head assembly is formed or machined as a single piece of material to reduce assembly demands. The heater head assembly has a planar surface to reduce complications involved with integration of the heater head assembly with various sources of heat.